About Margaret

Margaret was born in a secluded community in Montana that openly practiced polygamy. Her story is one of growing up in that community, learning of the limited purpose for her existence and yearning for more. As a young girl she knew she wanted more than she was presented with. She wanted more education, more life experience, and more possibilities. After enduring tremendous abuses, secrecy and hopelessness, she found a way out at the age of seventeen.

She carried that desire for freedom and willingness to take risks into her adult life and has become a successful entrepreneur. It is her eagerness to push forward without fear that people respect, and her passion for life that people are drawn to. Her story is one of hope and triumph, evidence of the resilience of the human spirit.

Among her many professional and personal commitments she dedicates time to helping other women find success in their own lives through mentoring and community involvement. She is President of Agape Toastmasters where she gives others the confidence to share their stories.
